LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS. HOW THE NEW-JERSEY STEAMBOAT COMPANY WAS WOUND UP. Russell Sturges procured some years ago for the New Jersey Steamboat Company a charter of the steamer Commodore and C. Vanderbilt under an agreement that he should have five per cent on the amount received under the charter party. The boats earned about $300,000, and Mr. Sturges sued the company for the dividends.

MCCARTHY ASSERTED TO BE A DUPE. The trial of William F. C. McCarthy on a charge of stealing Charles V. Hand's diamonds was resumed yesterday in the Court of General Sessions. The only witnesses called for the prisoner were Irwin K. Kellogg, an artist at No. 92 Broadway, Benjamin F. Popple, Eastern agent of the Atlantic and Great Western Railway, Charles P. Craig, Agent of the Erie Railway Company at No. 401 Broadway, and William Wood, also a railway agent, who testified that McCarthy bore a good reputation during their acquaintance with him, which had continued for several years. Charles V. Hand was called by the prosecution in rebuttal, but his testimony was mainly in verification of his evidence on the direct examination. Judge Curtis then inquired of the prisoner for the details of the trial. He said that the real culprit was not on trial. He was on the articles of partnership between McCarthy and Hand, and the contents of the contract which provided for the return of the diamonds in case of loss or damage. He said that he did not believe McCarthy's reputation before the trial, and that he believed the diamonds were stolen by Mrs. Lynch to Hand had been stolen, and that the whole transaction was a conspiracy in which McCarthy was the dupe. Judge Curtis will continue his address to-day.

PROOF OF FOREIGN MARRIAGES. Sumner Shure was married to James Shure in May, 1823, at the Parish Church of St. Mary le Bow, in Middlesex, England. Her husband deserted her, came to America, changed his name to Hardwick, and married again. On his death he left his property to his second family. On his trial she produced proof that she was the wife of James Shure, and that she was married to him in England. The defendant's counsel objected to the admission of the evidence, but the court ruled in favor of the plaintiff, and she was allowed to prove her case.

LOTTERY MEN FINED $100 EACH. Sherman Reed and Isaac Ludlum, of the firm of Reed & Co., and Henry Carson, of the firm of Carson & Co., were fined $100 each for selling lottery tickets in violation of the law. The court ordered the tickets to be destroyed, and the men were committed to jail for ten days.
